Pre-show Introduction

Meet the performers and crew before the show begins

The pre-show introduction is a chance to meet the actors, musician, and backstage crew before the Sensory Relaxed performance to learn more about the show you're attending.

The backstage crew will demonstrate some of the technical elements of the show, such as lighting changes, set movement, and special effects. The musician will demonstrate the instruments and the sound. The actors will introduce themselves and their characters and will explain key moments in the show like surprises, costumes, stunts, and sounds. The Show Guide will indicate when loud sounds or changes in lighting may occur, by covering their ears or eyes.

The pre-show introduction will be in the theatre 15 minutes before the Sensory Relaxed performance. The introduction is casual- you can come in at the start and attend the whole introduction, or you can drop in and out as you please. The audience can sit in their allocated seats, on the comfy seating, or stand, while the actors, musician, and crew are onstage or in their show positions (for example, the musician may be in the corner to the left of the stage).

The pre-show introduction is optional. If you'd like to keep all of the show elements a surprise or would simply like to explore outside until the show begins, you do not need to attend. The ushers will let you know after the introduction finishes when it's time to come into the theatre for the show to begin.
